■ Muscle pain

It refers to the overall pain that occurs in the muscles that play a major role in our physical exercise. Causes include chronic or acute sprains, bruises, sports injuries, accumulated psychological, physical stress, abuse, and inappropriate posture.

■ Solution

Various physical therapies, frequency of treatment, and injections of injection points have been shown to be effective in symptom relief. Physiotherapy may be combined with ultrasonography, hyperthermia, and electrotherapy, and various effects can be expected through deep pressure soft tissue massaging, ischemic pressure, and the like. In addition, stretching therapy, massage, and exercise through the home can help to improve the continuous pain.

- Prevents injuries by contraction and relaxation of muscles before exercise, and recovers muscles after exercise.
